

President on Pardon of Nixon

'No Secret Deals Made'... Ford

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford says Richard M. Nixon's acceptance of a pardon could be construed as an admission of guilt, but Ford's unyielding defense of the clemency has failed to still criticism of his decision.

Ford also said Monday night there were no secret reasons for the pardon and no secret deals with Nixon.

And he disclosed he is moving to allay concern among Watergate prosecutors about safeguarding Nixon tapes as potential evidence.

He said White House aides are negotiating with Watergate Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski's staff to remove concerns about preserving for possible courtroom use the tape recordings and presidential documents deemed to be Nixon's property.

Responding to a barrage of pardon-related questions at his second broadcast news conference, Ford declared, "I am absolutely convinced... I made the right decision in an effort, an honest, conscientious effort, to end the (Watergate) divisions and the turmoil in the United States."

Ford maintained that the former President had been "shamed and disgraced" by his resignation.

The President also said he had no inside information on Nixon's health at the time of the pardon, and although he was aware of published reports Nixon was ailing, "I was more anxious to heal the nation."

A number of congressional Democrats said they were not satisfied by Ford's defense of the pardon.

"Tonight, I thought there might be some light," said

Rep. Jerome Waldie, D-Calif., a member of the House Judiciary Committee that recommended Nixon's impeachment, "but there was none."

Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., of the Judiciary Committee said it would have been better had Ford "pursued the judicial process to show that all are treated equally under the law."

But Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., said Ford's explanation was "pretty straightforward and will make an impression on a lot of people who didn't agree with the pardon."

Reviewing his decision to pardon the former President, Ford went further than ever before in suggesting Nixon was guilty of impeachable offenses if not criminal misconduct. He said the unanimous Judiciary Committee vote for impeachment was "very persuasive evidence" and at another point declared, in response to a question, "the acceptance of a pardon, I think can be construed by many, if not all, as an admission of guilt."

The President has "several people in mind" to replace resigning staff chief Alexander M. Haig Jr., who is becoming military commander of NATO, and hopes to name a new press secretary to replace J.F. ter-

Horst, who quit in protest against the Nixon pardon, "in a relatively short period of time."

Ford said he is getting health reports on Nixon from day to day, but "I don't think I am at liberty to give any information from those reports I have received."

The New York Times, quoting a long-time friend of Nixon and member of his personal staff, reported in today's edition that Haig was responsible for persuading Ford to grant the pardon, warning of "a possible personal and national tragedy" that might stem from the former chief executive's complete physical and mental breakdown.

Asked about his statement at his confirmation hearings as vice president that the American people would not stand for him to pardon his predecessor, Ford responded:

"I did not say I wouldn't. I simply said that under the way the question was phrased, the American people would object."

The President acknowledged that "the decision has created more antagonism than I anticipated" but added, "I am still convinced, despite the public reaction so far, that the decision I made was the right one."

Amnesty Plan... Strong Feelings

By CARL GRAHAM

A Monday night poll conducted by the Freeman drew mixed reactions—from full agreement to total disagreement—with President Ford's announced plan to grant conditional amnesty for Vietnam era draft evaders and military deserters in exchange for 24 months of public service and a reaffirmation of allegiance to the United States.

Although reaction was mixed, there was no lack of strong opinions on the subject, with several of the respondents becoming quite emotional. Only one person—"I'm involved in politics and don't want to stir things up"—refused to be quoted.

MRS. HERMAN HACKER of Atwood Road, Stone Ridge, feels "these boys should get the same deal Nixon got."

She favors total amnesty for all evaders and resisters of service during the Vietnam conflict.

MRS. EDWARD R. ARNOLD of 1007 Orlando Street, Kingston, thinks President Ford's action will set a bad precedent.

"I think he's crazy," she said. "When we have a war, the boys won't fight, they'll run away to Europe."

CARL MUH of West Street, Rosendale, feels a blanket amnesty should be given to all men who evaded or deserted during the Vietnam conflict.

"Vietnam was not a declared war," he said. "We should give a blanket amnesty to everyone. If they do have some form of amnesty, I think that two years is too long."

MRS. WILBUR CLARK of South Rd. Mt. Marion, is opposed to any amnesty at all. "I think it's a disgrace," she said. "We should take the money (that will be spent on amnesty proceedings) and spend it on the boys who did serve. They need college educations, they need drug rehabilitation in many cases, they need so many things. Let's think about them."

MR. AND MRS. KENNETH FRIED of Halcyon Park, Town of Ulster, confessed to mixed reactions on the President's proposal.

"I'm against it," Mrs. Fried said. "But of course if I had a son who deserted, I would want him back. But knowing what my husband and other men went through in the war, I'm against it."

MRS. CHARLOTTE JACOBSEN of Woodland Road, Phoenicia, is "very strongly against amnesty."

She said that President Ford's offer of amnesty in return for 24 months of public service is "unfair to the people who have given their lives for this country."

JOHN M. WALKER of Sawkill Road has "mixed feelings" about the President's announcement.

"It has merit both ways," he said. "We have to be forgiving. What they (deserters) did was not right but if they are older, wiser, and repentant now, we must take that into consideration."

MRS. HELEN LJUNGQUIST of Minnewaska Trail, Gardiner, is opposed to amnesty. "We sent our boys over there (Vietnam) and some of them were maimed and killed. If the deserters didn't think enough of this country to stay and fight for it, why should they be allowed to come back?"

MRS. STANLEY B. NICHOLS of Bloomington is also opposed to any form of amnesty.

"The men who deserted—they should stay where they are," she said. "Conscientious objectors since World War II have served terms in lieu of military service. We shouldn't give amnesty to these deserters."

MRS. BERNARD CARLE of 35 Hoffman Street favors amnesty but is concerned about the kind of service resisters will be asked to do. She feels they should be given a choice.

"We need so many things these people can do," she said. "SCORE, the Peace Corps, VISTA, the Forestry Service, Appalachia—there are so many places where they can be a big help."

EVAN SOULE of Elyria, O., was the only Vietnam veteran contacted in the poll. Soule has been traveling around the northeastern states, staying for a few days at a time with various men he met while in the U.S. Army during the Vietnam conflict, and looking for work.

"I served my time, but I'm not very happy about it, and I don't know if I would do it again," he said. "It's nice to know that the President has all that concern for the guys that copped out. How about us poor slob who did serve? Right now, I'd settle for a good job."

MRS. BERNARD CARLE of

Ulster County Sheriff William B. Martin today responded to charges leveled by County Legislator Glenn A. DeBrosky (R-Dist. 6), who last week labeled the Sheriff a "financial incompetent."

DeBrosky charged on Thursday that the Sheriff's personal services account, funded by the county legislature, is presently bankrupt, and that it will require an additional $77,000 by the end of the year. "In the private sector, this act of fiscal irresponsibility would be labeled as a total financial collapse," said DeBrosky.

Martin answered today, however, by explaining how the shortage occurred. His statement follows in its entirety: "Things have gone far enough. I cannot sit idly by after the irresponsible attack upon the true financial picture of the Ulster County Sheriff's Department by an Ulster County Legislator recently, namely Mr. DeBrosky, assist them during their transitional period by housing their prisoners during their emergency. Needless to say, it costs money to do this. Guard personnel, food, clothing, medical and dental care, etc.

"Mr. DeBrosky failed to tell you that the Sheriff's Dept. immediately commenced billing Rockland County for this service. As of June 30, 1974, the Ulster County Sheriff's Department has received an amount of $73,170.59 for such costs from Rockland County. In addition we will bill Rockland County for $34,000 for the July to September, 1974 period.

"Now here is the irony of the situation. We logically assumed that since the costs of these services were coming out of the Sheriff's 1974 budget and the monies that leave the Department just where does that leave the Sheriff's Department? If Mr. DeBrosky had done his homework, he would know where that lack of common sense by you with egg on your face and you are deliberately deceiving the public for purely political reasons. Anyone familiar with government operation is fully aware that transfers of monies within department structures at this time of year is precisely a normal function with legislative approval. The only difference here being What department head is requesting it?"

Just what does that mean? That means that if any operating department in the county runs out of money, money that rightfully belongs to the Sheriff's Department budget could be transferred to the department that has run out of money to make up their deficit. But just where does that leave the Sheriff's Department? If Mr. DeBrosky had done his homework, he would know where that lack of common sense by you with egg on your face and you are deliberately deceiving the public for purely political reasons. ## Bus Terminal Hearing Slated

The Common Council gave its unanimous approval to a Sept. 30 public hearing date on a proposal by the urban renewal agency to build a Trailways bus terminal on Washington Avenue but there is a distinct possibility that public hearing may not come off as scheduled.

The agency wants to sell what is known as Parcel 12 to James Berardi Inc. of Kingston who in turn will combine it with the former Citgo gas station adjacent and on the corner of Washington and North Front Street for construction of a new Trailways bus terminal.

However, Roland A. Augustine, a Wall Street insurance executive, feels he has first preference and should be sold the land. Augustine, who attended Monday night's eight-minute meeting by the Council which set the public hearing, told the Freeman afterward that he has contacted his attorneys with the aim of getting a court injunction against the public hearing.

Augustine feels that the Council, by approving a public hearing for what the Agency considers a "qualified and eligible redeveloper" (Berardi) is giving tacit approval to Berardi. It is expected that Augustine's attorneys will seek a show cause order against the urban renewal agency. Augustine made an offer on the land before Berardi.

The only alderman to comment on the matter during the Council meeting was Clifford G. Sinsabaugh (D-10th Ward), chairman of the Urban Renewal Committee which recommended last night's legislation.

Sinsabaugh made his position clear, "I want it understood that this by no means is the final and last say as to who is the purchaser and developer."

Sinsabaugh, without mentioning Berardi or Augustine, noted the keen interest in the parcel since early 1973 and said that in light of that he had hoped it would have gone to public auction rather than through negotiated sale as is now the case. The agency is accepting an offer of $17,000 from Berardi. Augustine offered $20,000, another bone of contention.

Alluding to the controversy between Berardi and Augustine, Sinsabaugh said, "I had hoped we could go through the formalities with this parcel as with all the others. I don't think this will be the case."

Sinsabaugh noted that he and his committee had met privately and separately with Berardi and Augustine in an effort to hear both sides. He indicated the public would now hear both sides at the Sept. 30 public hearing.

The agency, in taking Berardi's side, contends that the bus terminal would be the "highest and best use" as compared to a 5,000 square foot office building that Augustine proposes to construct.

Key to the agency's argument in favor of Berardi is some $32,000 a year in sales tax revenue that would be realized from the operation of the bus terminal.

Augustine contends, however, that a bus terminal on Washington Avenue would not serve the highest and best use because of the possibility of creating a dangerous traffic situation on one of the city's busiest streets.

The public hearing is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in Council Chambers at city hall. The agency's deed of conveyance and Berardi's record of financial responsibility will be available at the urban renewal offices at 436 Broadway for ten days prior to the public hearing.

DOGS TAKE TOLL IN PONCHOCKIE—Mrs. Alfred Fabiano of 30 Willow Street offers grim testimony to the stray dog problem in downtown Kingston. Sunday, a pack of dogs (reportedly more than nine) broke into the Fabiano chicken coop and killed nine birds. ## Truck Kills Man on Thruway

A young West Hurley man was killed early today when a truck struck him on the New York State Thruway.

Some mystery surrounded the mishap today as police said they were unable to determine why Maher ran in front of the truck.

Troopers said their initial investigation revealed that Maher left his home at 11 p.m. Monday, saying he was going out for cigarettes. At about midnight, he called his home to say he was at a West Hurley tavern watching a football game, police said, adding that his whereabouts after midnight were yet to be determined.

The tank truck, loaded with liquid plastic, flipped onto its side after striking Maher, blocking the northbound lanes of the superhighway for several hours.

Compounding the mystery is the fact that police have been unable to locate the dead man's car, described as a 1965 Chevrolet Nova station wagon bearing license number 371-ULT. Troopers ask anyone seeing the vehicle to contact state police at Hurley Zone Headquarters.

Authorities said the truck, driven by Joseph Van Dunk, 31, of Paterson, N. J., was traveling north in the traffic lane when Maher suddenly ran from the shoulder waving his arms, throughout much of the morning.

Van Dunk swerved into the passing lane in a futile attempt to avoid striking the man, but said Maher died of massive injuries. Maher continued running into the passing lane and was ruling of accidental death.

School Board Forms Review Committee

The Kingston Schools Consolidated Board of Education, in what it terms its continuing commitment to keep the public informed of its activities, has formed a temporary committee called the Planning and Review Committee.

The committee will be chaired by former Board President Thomas Reynolds and will include Evelyn Corsones, Mrs. Doris Mulvin and James Owens and members of the public and students.

Formation of the committee was announced at a press conference today by Board President Joseph Feraca.

Feraca said the move toward easier access by the public to the ongoing activities of the board, was a result of a conference with news media last week in which it was noted (by the media) that one meeting a month was not enough to keep the public adequately informed on the activities of an organization that spends more than $19 million a year and educates some 11,000 children.

Feraca, in announcing the formation of the committee, noted in turn that the school board spends a good deal of its time in planning and review but that the committee was being established to solicit on a more or less formal basis, outside (the board) opinions. Feraca envisions students, community leaders and members of school organizations such as the parent-teacher groups on the committee.

Reynolds, in accepting the assignment, suggested that such community involvement with the district has been "needed for quite some time."

"We need additional input other than ourselves and the professional staff," Reynolds said.

Owens opined that "a great deal of board time is spent on it (planning and review). We don't have time to sit back and look at what we've done."

Mrs. Mulvin said that the success of any organization lay in its ability to evaluate and plan. Louis A. Salzmann, superintendent of schools, said the new committee would let the board and the staff know what the public thinks of its schools. "We get all kinds of reports from within the system," Salzmann said adding that "we have never had an overall opinion of the system."

Feraca said the school board was the first public organization to actively solicit opinions on its operation.

It was also announced that specific details of the first Thursday of the month board meetings would be made available to the press on Tuesdays. Previously the board published only a brief agenda.

"I feel that this misunderstanding could have been easily resolved because when facts are presented to the people in a straight forward and honest manner, the people will accept them," Dargis said. "The important thing here is not that a mistake was made but rather how the sharp upward spiral in our school taxes can be stopped. After all, an increase of over $30 per thousand in two years is unacceptable, especially when its due almost entirely to an unfavorable change in the equalization rate."

Dargis said he is calling on Sabino and Joseph Lohmaier, the town assessor, to make a public statement explaining why the school equalization rate has gone down. In addition, it would be desirable if the statement covered what plans are currently in effect to combat our skyrocketing school taxes, he suggested.

link fence, if for no other than psychological reason for a one-quarter of a million dollar facility, and were told by a key Republican legislator that, 'Gee, that would cost about $30,000.' I feel it was false economy to spend $250,000 dollars and then fail to complete the job. And just where were you when we asked for adequate pay for our deputies at least commensurate with adjoining counties? With dear ears you chose to considerably raise your own instead. How do you think deputies receiving less than $3.00 an hour feel about the legislators' pay raise?

"Now if there is any reader of this release who does not know who Mr. DeBrosky is: He is the new 'headline' seeker who only a few short months ago got headline exposure by publically attacking his own Republican Legislature chairman, Mr. (Peter J.) Savago, accusing him, of hiding in a 'slush' fund several thousands of dollars instead of returning it to the taxpayers in the form of tax relief. He was challenged by his own party, told to do his homework, which he subsequently did, and once again found himself all wrong. So, Mr. DeBrosky, I strongly suggest that you once again do your homework instead of attacking those who have already done theirs. And to rectify this unwarranted political attack my staff and I expect your public apology."

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Jacob K. Javits has confirmed he returned $8,500 in contributions from a maritime union before a Senate vote on legislation representing more jobs for ship workers.

The New York Republican was listed in a published report as the only Senate recipient to have returned campaign contributions from maritime unions before a vote on a bill requiring a larger percentage of U.S. oil imports to be carried on American flag ships.

Japan Plans To Borrow $1 Billion

TOKYO (UPI) — Japan, plagued by foreign exchange shortages, will borrow $1 billion from a major oil-producing nation, possibly Saudi Arabia, government sources said today.

The sources said arrangements have been made for borrowing $500 million in two installments in September and October.

It will be the first inflow of oil dollars into Japan and the first loan from abroad since the country obtained a $200 million loan from the United States in 1961, sources said.

Government officials refused to disclose details of the loan, but one official said it is safe to assume Saudi Arabia will lend the money.

The sources said the loan will be repayable in five years at an annual interest rate of about 10 per cent.

System Not Threatened

There is a growing concern that an increase of independent voters in the United States constitutes a serious erosion of the two-party system.

But even though the increase of independent voters is a fact, it certainly does not preclude that the two-party system is in trouble.

A number of polls have indicated that only 44 per cent of the voters consider themselves Democrats, 23 per cent consider themselves Republicans and fully 33 per cent decline to affiliate with either party.

The concern is that the independent voters make up a third party. However, a look at the voting trend in recent years lends no support to this contention. In fact, the independent voter in most cases is going to cast his ballot for either a Democrat or a Republican and not for a third-party candidate.

The concern should rather be directed toward the possibility of a one-party system. National labor union leaders are pouring huge sums of their members' money into attaining a veto-proof Congress after the 1974 election. The national labor unions would turn the Democratic party into a Labor party.

The argument that the Democrats and Republicans have different philosophies is no longer applicable in most cases. The planks in the platforms of the two parties are about the same on most major issues.

Therefore, the emergence of the independent voter could be what the country needs. Party affiliation should not be a relevant factor in the overall effectiveness of an elected official.

Absurd Level of Overkill

A military man well known for his penetrating criticism of stereotyped military thinking told a Senate subcommittee the other day that the number of weapons in American and Soviet nuclear arsenals "has reached an absurd level." Beyond any doubt he is right. Whether the two superpowers will take effective steps to end this absurdity is the jackpot question for a world that lives under the daily threat of a nuclear holocaust.

The quotation is from testimony of retired Adm. Gene R. LaRocque, head of the Center for Defense Information. In this capacity and as a former fleet commander and strategic planner, LaRocque is well qualified to present a bill of particulars in support of his claim that the measure of overkill on both sides has become ridiculous.

The Soviet Union, he told a Senate atomic energy subcommittee, has enough nuclear bombs and delivery capacity to drop 11 bombs on every American city of over 100,000 population. That may sound like the ultimate in overkill, in redundancy of destructive power. But consider the United States' corresponding capacity: we have enough bombs to drop not 11 but 36 of them on every Soviet city of that size.

This does not mean that U. S. destructive power is on the order of three times as great as that of the Soviet Union. Moscow, it appears, actually can brandish a weightier club—bigger bombs, and twice the tonnage of explosives. On the other hand, Washington could destroy many more targets. Thus it can be said that in destructive capacity the two powers are about at a standoff, even though U. S. strategic nuclear bombs number about 7,980 compared to the Soviet's 2,600.

That, however, is not really very comforting. Nor is it heartening to find that both countries are rapidly expanding their nuclear arsenals while the SALT negotiations proceed. Those talks are aimed at reaching agreement on strategic arms limitation. Yet as the talks bumble along, said LaRocque, the Soviet Union is adding one nuclear bomb or warhead daily to its stockpile and the United States is adding four every day.

It all adds up to confirmation of LaRocque's statement: "Obviously there is a high measure of overkill on both sides. The number of weapons available to the United States and the Soviet Union has reached an absurd level."

Indeed it has, and this is not simply a matter of academic interest to military and disarmament experts. The nuclear arsenals cast a black shadow across the future of mankind—a shadow which steadily lengthens as governments talk about reducing its size.

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — We have obtained the confessions of a Mafia Lieutenant, with a memory as long as his police record.

He is Eugene Ayotte, who used to be known in the Detroit underworld as "Johnny A." Now he is hiding under an assumed identity conferred upon him by the Justice Dept.

He has told us about his life in the Mafia, the shadowy society to which he had sworn loyalty. It is a story of gangland lovenests and hangouts, of bizarre crimes and corrupt police.

It is also the story of murder, of men garroted with wire and encased in concrete. At least one victim, according to Johnny A. wound up in a Detroit freeway. Thereafter, Mafia men would say of a missing hood, with grisly humor, that "he's part of the freeway."

Like the late Joe Valachi whose Mafia confessions made headlines in the 1960s, Ayotte's revelations ring true. Federal prosecutors vouch for his reliability. The Senate crime files and other records verify his memory for names and details.

Johnny A. worked for the Detroit Mafia, a criminal empire that embraces everything from bookies to blackmail, narcotics to the numbers racket — virtually every enterprise that produces an illegal coin.

A council of dons rules the multimillion-dollar empire through might. They have no competition: serious rivals are either dead or intimidated. Now Ayotte is on the run from them. For the old crime lords would like to shut Ayotte up.

But Ayotte is still talking, first to the prosecutors and now to us. He remembers Anthony J. Zerilli; identified by the Justice Dept. as a "Big Man" in the Mafia, was a swinger with the ritziest lovenest in town.

The mob chief owned a posh restaurant with a small hidden office which opened on a luxurious suite, complete with two bedrooms, a bar, "beautiful carpet and furniture, colored telephones, the works."

Both bedrooms, according to Johnny A. "had round beds, beautiful, and mirrors all around, even the ceiling. It looked like Tony Zerilli was a little weird . . . like to watch himself with the broads . . . From inside or outside, you couldn't even tell the place was there . . . Only the top (Mafia men) would be allowed in."

Love and death sometimes went together. Ayotte tells of a Mafia punk, named Ubai "Roy" Calabrese, who made a mistake in recruiting a prostitute. He introduced the girl to drugs and then "put her out on the street."

Unhappily for Calabrese, she was the daughter of a Mafia section leader. Two men grabbed Calabrese, "wired him up" — the Mafia term for garrotting — and left him in the trunk of an abandoned car. As the final gesture, a pig was trussed and strangled, and then delivered to one of Calabrese's hangouts.

"This was a warning to anyone who knew who killed Calabrese not to squeal," explained Johnny A. "I knew Roy. I used to drink with him . . . at the Falcon Street Show Bar. (But) you just don't question too much these things as it's not healthy."

When a gambler disappeared after giving information to the police, they searched high and low for him. They even descended upon the fabulous farms of Mafia leaders like Angelo Meli. But Ayotte could have told them the place to look was a Detroit freeway. The missing gambler had been mixed with the freeway cement.

One of Ayotte's criminal specialties was arson. Once, he contracted to burn a vacant building so the owner could collect fire insurance. As an economy measure, he hired a cheap "torch man" named "Smokey" to set the blaze.

Smokey came back from the conflagration in terrible shape. "with his hair burned half off, his eyelashes gone." Ayotte observed sourly that Smokey's "partner set the match to burn the gasoline and it burned before Smokey could get out."

Next time, Ayotte hired a professional, known as "Butchy," who had enlisted remnants of Detroit's old "Purple Gang" into a crack, Cleveland-based pyro team. They brought to the job "gunpowder, fuses, gas with a chemical so as to leave no trace . . . They brought enough to use on a dozen joints."

They burned down a building, another "insurance job," for an owner Ayotte knew as "Singing Sam." "The place," recalled Ayotte with professional satisfaction, "was a total."

Although Johnny A. has now switched sides, he still chuckles over how Secret Service agents overlooked evidence right under their noses when they arrested Joe Yoppo, a prominent Toledo gangster otherwise known as "Big Joe Yap," on counterfeiting charges.

Ayotte happened to be on the phone to Yoppo while the feds were searching his premises. Afterwards, Big Joe Yap told him the agents missed a stolen $1,000 bond in plain view on the china cupboard and a heisted, full-length sable coat in the front closet. "That sable stood out like a sore thumb," grinned Yoppo, according to Ayotte.

Like a character from an old George Raft movie, Johnny A. told us his story—an insider's eye view of a nationwide criminal conspiracy that drains billions of dollars a year from the public.

We'll publish another installment in a future column.

The CIA and Chile

By WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY Jr.

The word is out that Ambassador Daniel Patrick Moynihan has expressed in a secret cable the dismay with which he meets the news that the CIA attempted to "interfere" with the election of Allende. Mr. Moynihan is a man of great principle, and he is especially embarrassed because he personally reassured Mrs. Gandhi that the United States was not interfering with Chilean politics. A State Department official, while not conceding that we have done anything improper in Chile, acknowledged that Mr. Moynihan was indignant, but then remarked that "Pat is always indignant." He has a lot to be indignant about.

The CIA-Chile controversy is hugely subtle and interesting. Last year Mr. Moynihan persuaded the United States to tear up several billion dollars in notes owed by India to the United States. Now India is a terribly mismanaged country, and the poverty there is appalling.

There are Indians (I know one, a very prominent Indian) who believe that U.S. aid to the governments of India during the post-war period was arrant interference in Indian politics. We took the position that we were merely performing humanitarian deeds.

I do not doubt that was our motive. And I do not doubt that was our motive in attempting to help the resistors to Allende. Moreover, if we had succeeded, Chile would have been spared the miserable, dirty, despotic tribulations it is enduring at this moment. That doesn't, of course, dispose of the point that State Department officials apparently misled Congressional committees. Put that aside, for the moment, as a democratic dilemma.

It is a pity that critics of CIA involvement in Cuba do not put the situation in context. It is made to appear as though we uniquely desired to fashion the will of the Chilean people. In the year before Allende came to power:

1) Soviet and East European films were shown regularly in commercial theaters, universities, clubs, and television — paid for by the Soviets.

2) The Soviet Union published a picture magazine edited for Chilean consumption, with a circulation of 10,000. (In U.S. terms, that would be the equivalent of 200,000.)

3) The Communist party of Chile, under Soviet domination, produced a bimonthly theoretical journal and a daily newspaper.

4) The Soviet Union, Cuba, Czechoslovakia and Poland participated in trade fairs including cultural and technical exhibits, including one exhibit of over 500 Marxist books contributed by the U.S.S.R. One exhibit was devoted to "Yankee aggression in Vietnam."

5) Communist news agencies included Chira, Cuba, East Germany, Tass, and Novosti.

6) The U.S.S.R. broadcasts 73 hours per week in Latin America. East European countries 84 hours, Communist China 28 hours. And Cuba 163 hours.

7) Soviet officials made available program tapes to provincial radio stations. One station carried a weekly program produced by Chilean students at Lumumba University. The Communist party conducted regular programs on a Santiago station and on six provincial stations.

Now all this does not take into account the work done by the Communist front groups — the World Peace Council, for instance, or the World Federation of Trade Unions, or the International Student Union, or the Latin American Solidarity Organization. And, of course, it does not take into account the clandestine work done by the Communists.

What should the United States do, under such circumstances? In another connection, Ambassador Moynihan, indignant over America's rapine presence in the United Nations, cabled prescriptions not inapplicable in attempting to understand the Chilean situation. "There was a saying around the Kennedy White House: don't get mad, get even . . . what has come over us? Forget about a slander on our honor? What have we become? Any country that does not support us on a matter of consequence not only damages the United Nations, but must quietly be brought to understand it is damaging itself. I looked down the list of those who go along by abstaining. In half of them the present regimes would collapse without American support or American acquiescence. To hell with it. Something specifically bad should happen to each one of them, and when it has happened they should be told that Americans take the honor of their democracy most seriously, and never issue warnings to those who would besmirch that honor. When that happens, something extraordinarily disagreeable happens next, and the victim is left to figure it out for himself."

But for that sort of thing, don't you bring in the CIA?

Dem Hopefuls Take to the Road

WASHINGTON — The Congressional and gubernatorial campaigns this fall are offering voters across the country an exceptional opportunity to take an early look at President Gerald Ford's probable Democratic opponent in 1976.

The four most likely Presidential nominees have heavy travel schedules which will take them to the states with the biggest populations, key primaries or early party caucuses — and some of the other states as well — on behalf of local Democratic candidates.

They are Sens. Henry Jackson of Washington, Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, Walter Mondale of Minnesota, and Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts. All but Kennedy have already filed reports of official Presidential planning committees with the General Accounting Office, as required by the campaign finance disclosure law. Kennedy, who leads the pack in the public opinion polls, has promised to announce in early 1975 whether he will seek the Presidency.

(This columnist does not include Gov. George Wallace among "likely" nominees, because private reports indicate his health is not strong enough to support a Presidential campaign, despite his brave public front.)

The off-year elections have traditionally provided an excuse for Presidential candidates to perfect their speaking style, make political points, and earn goodie points as valuable party stalwarts. The classic example of an off-year success story is Sen. Barry Goldwater, who worked so hard as GOP Senate Campaign Chairman in 1962 that he sewed up the 1964 Presidential nomination.

Bentsen, who is Democratic Senate Campaign Chairman, is hoping to repeat that story, and has been traveling steadily all year. He has promised to visit every state where a Senate candidate wants him. He is, for instance, due next week in South Dakota, to address a dinner honoring Sen. George McGovern, who is waging a tough fight for reelection. It is a useful event for both men; McGovern hopes that a Southern moderate will convince the home folks he isn't as radical as many of them think, and Bentsen hopes that by embracing McGovern he can pull the fans of the young militants who tore the party to shreds in 1972.

Jackson is stepping up both his travels and his campaign planning. He recently moved into a new phase by setting up a formal organization to raise funds, headed by ex-

Muskie man Richard Kline. Jackson will make at least 10 appearances in various cities this fall before private groups now being assembled as potential workers or donors.

Jackson, like Bentsen, is trying to reach out to the liberal end of the party spectrum, where he was heatedly opposed two years ago. For instance, he will campaign this week for Allard Lowenstein, a candidate for Congress in New York who was a leader of the 1968 dump Johnson movement.

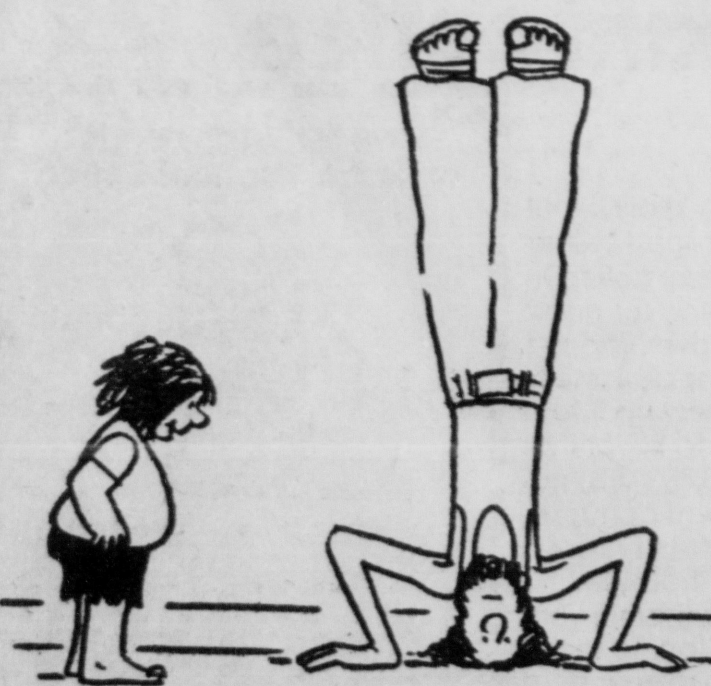

Mondale, by contrast, is concentrating less on broadening his appeal than on strengthening his support in the area where he is best known, the Middle West. He will campaign this month for candidates in Colorado, Kansas, Missouri, Illinois and Michigan. He is also making a speech in New Hampshire, which holds the first Presidential primary.

Mondale is not as far along in organizing and fund-raising as Jackson or Bentsen, but he moved another step forward this month by issuing his first promotional mass mailing.

Kennedy, too, is active, although more coy about his long-range plans than the others. He made several appearances for Democrats in California last week and will speak for Sen. Birch Bayh, who was briefly a 1972 Presidential candidate, in Indiana this week. He does not need the campaign exposure to become well known, as the others do, so he can take things a bit easier. His schedule shows only four appearances for candidates in the three weeks following his speech for Bayh.

Benedictine Auxiliary Has Chinese Tea and Luncheon

Dr. John Lin, chairman of the Department of Asian Studies at State University at New Paltz, was guest speaker at the Benedictine Hospital Auxiliary Chinese tea-luncheon on Thursday, Sept. 12 at the Panda Restaurant.

Dr. Lin spoke about the antiquated traditions and discriminations against women in the Asian countries. He indicated, however, that many of these practices have changed during the past 20 or 30 years and that women have become more prominent in their status in these countries. World War II contributed greatly to these changes, he said, because more women were employed during those years and have continued to be employed in business since then. In some Asian countries, women have become more prominent in politics also.

Guests at the luncheon were served a variety of Chinese hot foods, and Chinese pastries from Chinatown in New York City. A display of Oriental articles was presented for sale. These articles had been donated to the Auxiliary by members and friends.

Mrs. Nicholas Radakovich was chairman of the event. She was assisted by Mrs. Richard Larson and Mrs. John Nilson, reservations. Mrs. Anthony Visevich, tickets. Mrs. Ronald Hurley, arrangements and Mrs. John McCordle, publicity.

Charles Bradley of New Paltz served as best man. Ushers were Ralph Stiles of Lawrence; Gregory and Lance Castellana, brothers of the bridegroom, New Paltz.

A reception was given at the Hedges in West Park.

The bride and bridegroom are both graduates of State University College at New Paltz. She was employed by American Telephone and Telegraph Corp. in White Plains. Her husband is manager of Van Sickle Shoe Store in New Paltz.

Uncle Wants Applause for His Wedding Gift

DEAR ABBY: I was recently married. At the reception, my uncle handed me an envelope. I had no idea it was a check, but I put it in my pocket without looking at it. (There were over 300 people at the reception, and I was busy accepting congratulations.)

Before we started for our honeymoon I opened the envelope and found a handsome check with a four-page letter of advice on how to stay happily married (This uncle and his wife had been married for 34 years.)

On our honeymoon, my wife and I composed what we thought was a very nice letter of thanks, and mailed it to my uncle and aunt.

When we returned home, we found a very angry letter from my uncle ripping me up one side and down the other for not having the "good manners" to have opened the envelope at the reception, announcing his gift and reading his letter. I was shocked!

Abby, had I opened the envelope at the reception, I wouldn't have made such an announcement.

Was I in error? If so I will apologize.

BEWILDERED NEPHEW

DEAR NEPH: It would have been improper for you to have announced your uncle's gift at the reception and an imposition on your guests. Your "apology" is quite unnecessary; but your publicity-seeking uncle owes you one.

DEAR ABBY: Ours was an office romance. Mert was in accounting and I was a secretary to the president. Maybe opposites do attract, because I'm the vivacious, outgoing, gabby type, and Mert is quiet and more introverted. I had never met a kinder, more thoughtful man.

After three years of marriage, we're having a planned baby in five months. I'm 28 and Mert is 30. Now the problem:

I plan to take a six-month leave from work to have the baby and to return to work when the baby is three months old. Mert is going to quit his office job and stay home to keep house and care for our child. He has a fantastic way with children. I don't. Mert loves cooking and housekeeping. I hate it. Mert finds office work dull and boring. I love it. I've always earned much more than Mert. Do you think this could work out? Or do you think we're crazy?

REVERSED ROLES

DEAR REVERSED: Why not? If it doesn't, you aren't married to the plan. And no, I don't think you're crazy. I think you are to be envied. Few people have the courage to thumb their noses at the rule of thumb.

DEAR ABBY: I read a claim of psychologist that the average person tells about 1,000 lies per year. Is that true?

DESIRES PROOF
DEAR DESIRES: What "psychologists"? Reliable statistics for such a study could be acquired only by taping every word uttered in one year by an "average" person (and there's another trap for you — who's to define who is "average?") and then separating the truth from the lies.

I doubt that such was ever made. Moral: Don't believe everything you read.

CONFIDENTIAL TO KEEPING MUM IN CONNECTICUT: You may mean well, but you're making no progress toward a better relationship. "Speech" is civilization itself. The word — even the most contradictory word — preserves contact. It is silence which isolates. (Thomas Mann)

It's United Way campaign time. "Oh," you might say, "time to give again?" More than that. Time to reflect on what United Way has done for the community in this past year. Time to consider what the community would be like without the United Way.

This past year, United Way agencies were able to serve thousands of people because of your support... helping your neighbors, your friends, your parents... you. United Way is a people's organization. And thanks to you, it's working.

Reduction In Meat Prices

The outlook for a reduction in meat prices has improved, according to the Consumer and Market Information Service of the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets. This is because wholesale beef, pork and lamb prices declined noticeably last week. Therefore, retail prices on feature items should begin to reflect this shortly.

Beef items with enticing price tags will be chuck roast and steak from 85 cents to 89 cents, frankfurters from 75 cents to 89 cents, ground beef from 79 cents to 85 cents, and short ribs at 78 cents. Roasts on special will be standing rib roast from $1.40 to $1.49, round roast from $1.28 to $1.38, beef rump roast from $1.45 to $1.78, and sirloin tip roast from $1.38 to $1.78. In the steak line, look for round steak from $1.45 to $1.79, sirloin steak from $1.50 to $1.79, rib steak from $1.45 to $1.49, and cube steak in the vicinity of $1.79.

There will be a good variety of pork features making the scene this week. On special, here and there, will be smoked ham butt from 75 cents to 89 cents, smoked ham shank from 65 cents to 79 cents, rib chops from 89 cents to 99 cents, spareribs from 89 cents to $1.05, bacon from 89 cents to $1.29, and sausage, depending on type, from 79 cents to $1.15. Other pork items worth shopping for are fresh picnic at 59 cents rib and loin end roasts at 99 cents, center cut chops from $1.39 to $1.45, and ham slices at $1.29.

Doing the Right Thing

By ELIZABETH L. POST

Dear Mrs. Post: I am married to a man who has three girls from a previous marriage. They live with their mother who has a good job. She has not remarried. The oldest girl is planning a church wedding and reception for 350 people. The ex-wife wants and expects my husband to pay for the entire affair. He does not know what to do. He wants to pay his share. What is the right thing to do?

MRS. R.

Dear Mrs. R.: Since the girls have been living with their mother, and she presumably expects to make the plans and act as hostess at her daughter's wedding, she should not expect your husband to pay all the expenses. He should, however, take care of half of the expenses. If his ex-wife cannot afford to assume the other half, perhaps the scale of the wedding should be reduced.

Dear Mrs. Post: My mother and father were married for 42 years. Dad passed away three years ago. Knowing that it would upset her, I have never sent her a card on her anniversary. However, my brother's wife sends her a card every year which upsets mother very much.

Is there any way she, or I, could tactfully put an end to this?

MRS. LESTER

Dear Mrs. Lester: Ordinarily, I would not suggest that relatives meddle in each other's affairs. However, in this case, when you know your mother is upset by her daughter-in-law's cards, I think you should step in. Simply explain to your sister-in-law that your mother has mentioned how upset the cards make her but hesitated to say anything because she knew the gesture was well meant, and didn't wish to hurt any feelings.

What is your most puzzling etiquette problem? To the sender of the most interesting question that I receive each week, I will send a free copy of Emily Post's Etiquette. The question chosen, and its answer, will be published in this column. Send your question to Elizabeth L. Post, in care of The Daily Freeman, and don't forget to include your name and address.

Foreman's Cut: Deep, Serious

By JOHN VINOCUR
Associated Press Writer

N'SELE, Zaire (AP) — World heavyweight champion George Foreman's cut eye was described today as deep and serious, and the most favorable prognosis for a resumption of training for his title fight against Muhammad Ali involved two weeks rest.

A source who could not be identified described the gash that led to the postponement of the scheduled Sept. 25 championship fight — boxings' richest bout ever — as more than an inch long.

Three butterfly bandages, a kind of adhesive that binds lay ers of skin together, were used to close the wound, he said. There were no stitches taken in the horizontal gash which is located between Foreman's right eye and his eyebrow.

While Foreman rested at his villa today playing card games and walking his dog, his manager Dick Sadler, the fight promoter, a representative of Ali and Zaire officials were working out a statement on how long the postponement will be. A Zaire government official had promised there would be an official announcement on the status of the fight sometime today.

Because of on-coming competition of the baseball World

Series and the football season broadcast of the fight, its main spokesman, declined any comment on the fighter's condition.

George is trying to stay loose and to relax. His mood is very good, considering," Kaplan said.

He said Foreman was trying to call friends and his parents in the United States to reassure them about his condition. The cut, which was clean and looked as if it had been inflicted by a razor, came Monday afternoon during a sparring session on a blow that was either a misplaced elbow or a well directed jab.

The sparring partner was Bill McMurray. Al said, "He's going to go down, but we feel it will be a short time." He said later that the postponement would be a "matter of days, not weeks."

Bill Kaplan, Foreman's press

Bulletin

NEW YORK (AP) — The George Foreman-Muhammad Ali heavyweight championship fight has been postponed until either Oct. 23 or Oct. 30, the fight promoters announced today.

Hank Schwartz, vice president of Video Techniques, the fight promoters, said an announcement of the exact date of the fight would be made in several days by the government of Zaire.

Schwartz said Ali and Foreman would remain in Zaire to train for the fight, which had been scheduled for Sept. 25 until Foreman received a cut over his eye on Monday.

Foreman's own physician, Dr. Peter Hacker, said the champion was not experiencing any discomfort. Tshimpumpu Wa Tshimpumpu, the Zaire government press spokesman, said Monday the fight "is being put off. We don't know how long it will be, but we feel it will be a short time." He said later that the postponement would be a "matter of days, not weeks."

O. J. Isn't Buffalo's Entire Offense

ORCHARD PARK, N. Y. (UPI) — "There's more than O. J. on this offense."

The speaker was none other than O. J. Simpson, the Buffalo Bills' record-breaking ground-gainer, who had just watched from the sidelines as his teammates scored a 21-20 National Football League victory over the Oakland Raiders in an almost incredible two minute performance before a national television audience.

Simpson, who suffered a minor right ankle sprain late in the first half, did not play in the second half. However, he saw the game as another plus for the young Buffalo club.

"No longer can people say that O. J. is the Buffalo offense," Simpson said. "I'm just a plus in our offense."

Two of Simpson's usual supporting cast on the Bills' offense, quarterback Joe Ferguson and wide receiver Ahmad Rashad, took over—especially in the hectic final two minutes.

This was the situation:
The Bills trailed 13-7 with 1:56 left when Ferguson connected with Rashad on an eight-yard touchdown pass. John Leypoldt converted the extra point and Buffalo led 14-13.

The Bills held the Raiders after three unsuccessful Ken Stabler passes and took over on their own 31. On the first play, Oakland's Art Thoms recovered Jim Braxton's fumble and went all the way with 1:14 left. The Raiders now led 20-14.

Buffalo took over on its own 21 after the kickoff and marched 72 yards in eight plays, capped by a 13-yard Ferguson-to-Rashad TD pass with just 31 seconds left.

But it still wasn't over. The Raiders went from their 41 to the Buffalo 33 in three plays. George Blanda, who is 47 years old today, attempted a 50-yard field goal with six seconds showing on the clock. The kick was wide to the right as time expired.

The Bills took a 7-3 halftime lead on Ferguson's four-yard touchdown pass to J.D. Hill and Blanda countered for the Raiders with a 34-yard field goal. Clarence Davis scored on a 15-yard run and Blanda kicked another field goal to give the Raiders their 13-7 edge before the final two minutes.

Butkus Isn't Convinced Bears' Coach Can Last

CHICAGO (UPI) — Ex-Chicago Bears star Dick Butkus said he thought his 500, they've got to make a move. If he doesn't, I don't see how he can be around."

He said he thought the Bears' future looked brighter, adding that the defense did a "good job" against Detroit but the weak spot was the lack "of a real explosive offense."

"That would be a big step forward from Chicago's 3-11 finish of a year ago."

But Butkus, appearing at a luncheon after viewing the Bears' season-opening 17-9 victory over Detroit Sunday, said he believes the Bears have the potential to finish .500 this year.

"They catch Detroit again," he said, "and then they play San Diego and the New York Jets. If they win the games they should win, we've got four so far—and they can squeak out three more. But a lot depends on injuries."

"If he doesn't come out .500, I imagine Gibrone will be gone."

Butkus said he thought his football career was "all gone" but indicated he wanted to take a chance and get back into the game as soon as possible. "There's a slim chance I can play, but I'll be taking a chance job" against Detroit but the if I get hurt again," he said. He said his current status with the Bears is uncertain but that a legal settlement is expected within a month. "I've had other offers, but excited about beating Detroit right now. I'm in limbo," because to me they really Butkus said, "It's like playing looked poor. The Bears will get out my option. Whether I'll be a test from the Jets with Joe capable of playing next year. I don't know."

Cites WBA-WBC Conflict

Foster Retires

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. (UPI) — World light heavyweight champion Bob Foster, the only fighter ever to go unbeaten in his division, has wearied from his sparring match with the World Boxing Council.

The 35-year-old champion announced Monday he was retiring from the ring rather than continue to battle the council and World Boxing Association.

"I am tired of having the World Boxing Council and World Boxing Association tell me who I can fight and when I can fight," said Foster.

The WBC last month stripped Foster of his title after the champion refused to fight England's John Conteh, rated the No. 1 contender in the division by the WBC.

More recently, the WBA ordered Foster to sign a contract with Argentina's Victor Galeandez by Nov. 3 or face similar action from that body.

Foster, who captured the title from Dick Tiger in 1968 and defended it a record 14 times, has refused to fight either

BOB FOSTER

Conteh or Galeandez because of the money involved.

"There is no money in the fights they want me to take," Foster said. "I still think I can beat any light heavyweight in the world but it's too much of a mental thing to fight the WBA and WBC."

Foster, considered one of the hardest punchers in boxing, said he preferred to fight Len Hutchins of Detroit because Hutchins' manager, Henry Grooms, had offered Foster's camp a $200,000 guarantee for a shot at his crown.

"Hutchins will never get a shot at the title because he is a black man," said Foster. "I wanted to give him a shot before I retired."

A former bomb factory worker, Foster rose through the light heavyweight ranks, getting a shot at the title only after he guaranteed Tiger $100,000. The tall, hard hitting Foster kayoed Tiger in the fourth round, marking the only time Tiger was stopped in his career.

The champion's last defense came in June when he retained his title through a controversial draw against Argentina's Jorge Ahumada.

Foster finished with a career record of 51 wins, six losses and a draw, with all of his losses being to heavyweights.

Dodgers Won't Fold

Reds See Inevitable

By United Press International
The inevitability of it all is beginning to sink in on the Cincinnati Reds.

Two and a half games behind the Los Angeles Dodgers and running out of time to catch them, some of the Reds already sound like they're ready to concede the National League West title to Los Angeles.

The reason they're so pessimistic is the schedule.

Los Angeles is playing 13 of its final 16 games against San Diego and Houston—two teams it holds a combined 22-2 edge on this season.

That stretch began Monday night and the Dodgers had no trouble. They beat the Astros 7-2 while Cincinnati was defeating San Diego 9-2.

"I've got to feel that they're going to win all their games," said Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson, sounding a little like a beaten man. "There is no way to expect clubs to beat them now that haven't been able to beat them all year."

"They've got seven games against the Padres. They handle this club like they own them," chimed in Reds catcher Johnny Bench, the major league RBI leader with 117 including two against San Diego on Monday night.

The Reds figure their last chance probably was lost on Sunday when the Dodgers won their final meeting of the season to escape from a six-game September showdown with a split.

"If we were ahead of them," Anderson says with unmistakable logic, "we wouldn't have to worry."

The Dodgers, who folded in a similar situation last year and eventually finished second in the West, 3½ games behind the Reds, are getting some help now from their weak opponents. Monday night Houston contributed four errors to ease Andy Messersmith's path to his 18th victory.

"You know things are going well when you score three runs in one inning on one hit," said Bill Buckner, who had the hit, a single, in a three-run third. "I can see the momentum building now. We're going to win as many as we can and not worry about Cincinnati."

The Dodgers and the Reds were the only pennant contenders playing on Monday.

Both teams in the NL East race—St. Louis and Pittsburgh—and all three in the AL East

—New York, Boston and Baltimore—were idle.

In the other NL games played, the Mets and Expos split 3-2 games, the Expos winning their eighth straight in the opener and the Mets taking the second game, and San Francisco defeated Atlanta 4-2.

The Minnesota Twins, whose manager, Frank Quilici, got a new contract for 1975 on Monday, beat Kansas City 7-2 in the only AL game.

Dodgers 7, Astros 2

Houston made four errors in the first six innings to help the Dodgers get their first six runs on only three hits. Buckner's single was the only hit in the third when Los Angeles scored three and the Dodgers got two more in the fifth when Steve Garvey singled Messersmith home and Buckner scored on an error.

Reds 9, Padres 2

Bases-empty homers by Dan Driessen and Cesar Geronimo led a 13-hit attack by the Reds. They put the game away early scoring three in the first when Dave Concepcion singled two runs home and Geronimo singled in the other and adding four in the third.

Expos Solve Mystery Of Davis' 'Disappearance'

MONTREAL (UPI) — The Montreal Expos split a doubleheader with the New York Mets Monday night and also solved the mysterious disappearance of Willie Davis.

The Expos took the opener 3-2 and then dropped the nightcap by the same score.

Davis, who Sunday verbally blasted a local newsmen, took himself out of the game in the sixth inning of the opener after making an error which ended in a triple for the Mets. Davis was booed loudly by the crowd and it appeared that this was the reason why he took himself out of the game.

"Willie Davis wasn't feeling well before the game," said Manager Gene Mauch. "He was complaining of a headache and said he was dizzy. I asked him if he wanted to play and he said he'd try. The crowd booed him because they thought he was loafing when (Jerry) Koosman hit that triple in the fifth inning."

Davis was not available for comment.

Ron Woods, who replaced Davis, was the hero for the Expos in the opener as he drove in two runs with a seventh inning two out single. The win extended Montreal's winning streak to eight games, equalling their record set in 1971.

Mike Torrez worked seven innings for his 13th victory against eight defeats as John Montague picked up his third save. Koosman was charged with his 10th loss in 23 decisions.

In the nightcap, Mets rookie Randy Sterling made his first appearance in the major leagues a winning one by going 5-2-3 innings before leaving the game when his right elbow tightened. Tug McGraw worked the remaining innings for his third save.

Rusty Staub hit his 17th homer with nobody on in the fifth inning and in the same inning, Wayne Garrett singled in two more runs. The Expos scored both of their runs in the bottom of the sixth.

Phog Allen Dies at 88

LAWRENCE, Kan. (UPI) — It was a life of accomplishment and victories.

Memories and past deeds came flooding back today on the life of Dr. Forrest C. "Phog" Allen, who died Tuesday at the age of 88.

Allen, who won 24 conference championships in 39 years as head basketball coach at the University of Kansas, was revered as one of the men most responsible for the popularity of the sport.

He was almost single-handedly responsible for getting basketball included in the Olympic program, he was one of the founders of the National Basketball Coaches Association in 1927 (and served the first three years as president). He was also the man who recruited Wilt Chamberlain.

As coach of 49 teams over a span of 46 years, Allen won 771 games and lost 233, for a .768 winning percentage. At Kansas, Allen won 381 and lost 219.

He was bed-ridden in recent years and shattered by the death of his wife, the late Bessie Evalina Allen, in January, 1970. They were married 61 years.

Allen died Tuesday at the home in Lawrence. He had been ill since 1973.

When Allen retired from coaching in 1956, he was the winningest coach in history. It wasn't until 1963 that his record was surpassed by a former pupil, Adolph Rupp of Kentucky. Rupp, who played on the 1923 national championship team at Kansas, returned to Lawrence in 1968 for the 45th reunion of that team.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Thursday in the Plymouth Congregational Church span of 46 years, Allen won 771

"We had sort of a long fight to be No. 1 last season and it helped our determination, I believe," said Parsegian, whose Irish teams have lost only 15 of 104 games in his 10 years as head coach. "I think the reason we weren't ranked No. 1 before this season began is all the things that have happened to us — the injuries, the construction accidents, the dismissals."

"People thought we would not be as strong as last season after that. But we were fortunate enough to have a little better performance to open the season than some of the teams who were ranked ahead of us."

Notre Dame, idle last week, downed Georgia Tech 31-7 in a nationally televised game Sept. 16.

KNIFING THROUGH — The American defender Courageous (R) and the Australian challenger Southern Cross, as they knifed through the glistening waters off Newport, R. I., shortly after start of third race in best-of-seven America's Cup competition. Courageous went on to win its third straight. (UPI)

Courageous Proving U.S. Has Better Boat

By JACK WOLISTON

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) —

With three decisive victories stowed away, the U.S. defender

Courageous heads out into

Rhode Island Sound today to try to make it four straight over the Australian challenger

Southern Cross and end millionaire Alan Bond's $9-million dream of capturing the America's Cup.

The third victory Monday

over the yellow-hulled Australian yacht was the easiest of them all for Courageous. Her margin of 5 minutes, 27 seconds

and about a half mile in distance compared with a margin of 4 minutes, 54 seconds

in the first race last Tuesday and 1 minute, 11 seconds in the second race Thursday.

The third race simply added more proof to what everyone has said already—Courageous is a better boat and has a sharper skipper and crew.

Throughout this series, the leaders have made no mistakes. Southern Cross has piled it up from there except for the third reaching leg where

shave 9 seconds off the lead

with better spinnaker work.

Courageous starting helmsman

Dennis Connor denied that he deliberately lured Southern Cross into that position.

"We knocked out with about 15 seconds to go and I had the advise from Halsey (Hersheff, navigator) and Ted (Hood, skipper) that we were still a little early, but looking back at Southern Cross I noticed that she was still going for it and the man at the bow indicated that we could still go for it and not be over so. Not being shy, I just put it right up on the line and sure enough we were over."

Southern Cross skipper Jim

Hardy said he didn't think his boat had crossed the line early and that was why he was slow to react to the committee boat signal for him to restart, although he didn't think that was a factor in the race.

On the second try, helmsman

Connor got Courageous away to a 16-second advantage and piled it up from there except for the third reaching leg where

Southern Cross managed to

shave 9 seconds off the lead

with better spinnaker work.

the helm over to skipper Hood.

After the start, Connor turned the veteran sailor and Marblehead, Mass., sailmaker who took Courageous around the first mark 45 seconds in front.

At the second mark he was out front by 1:25, then had

Southern Cross shave it to 1:16

at the third.

But after that it was no contest. Courageous was ahead

2:52 at the third mark, 3:32 at the fifth and 5:27 at the finish line as a booming cannon announced her third victory.

A victory for Courageous today meant this 22nd challenge for the Cup which the United States won from England in 1851 would wind up in eight days and would be the fourth time the defenders have defeated the Australians since 1958. It was that year that 12 meter yachts replaced the more expensive J boats in Cup competition. In the two other series since then, the U.S.

defeated England twice.

Only in two series has the United States ever lost a race—in 1962 to Australia's Gretel I and in 1970 to Australia's Gretel

II.

Kicking Marvel In Bayou

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP) — A slender soccer-style kicker from Mexico City is making waves in the bayous of Louisiana's Cajun country with towering field goals of 50 yards and longer kickoffs that sail out of the end zone.

"God sent us Rafael Septien," said Southwestern Louisiana Coach Augie Tammariello after the 165-pound booter had kicked field goals of 50, 49 and 33 yards against Tulane Saturday night. "He's the best field goal kicker in America."

The 50-yard boot was Septien's first kick in the first football game he had ever played. "I didn't even see the guys trying to block the kick," he said Monday. "When I watched it on film, and saw their charge for the first time, it felt kind of funny."

"When I kicked off to start the game, I was so nervous I didn't even see the ball. Just kicked on instinct, sort of. But I was calm when the field goal try came up."

Septien narrowly missed a 54-yarder Saturday night when something went wrong between the center and the holder.

"I saw the snap, and the holder didn't put the ball down with his usual continuous motion," Septien said. "When I saw that, I lost my concentration and didn't follow through."

The ball was less than a foot under the crossbar, in spite of the foul up and the fact that he was kicking with a strained groin muscle.

He was also playing after a recent bout of illness that knocked five pounds off his ready slender frame. His jersey number "11" almost covers his chest.

He figures the sickness — which he attributes to nervousness and a heavy class load — reduced his strength by about 10 per cent.

"I feel like I can make about 75 per cent of my kicks from 50 yards," Septien said.

In practice, Tammariello said, Septien has booted them across from 70 and 66 yards.

A friend told him last year that Southwestern needed a kicker and that he might be able to get a scholarship.

"I practiced for two days, then came here. I couldn't find anyone to snap or hold for me, so I just practiced with a ball," he said.

Pro football scouts will have to wait three years for Septien's services. He's only a sophomore.

At Kingston High Top Soccer Prospects

KINGSTON The fullback line "has good depth and experience," according to the veteran KHS players, in all, are back. Kingston's home opener at Loughran Park is Saturday at 10 a.m. against Rhinebeck.

"Mike Helmich is the most complete player on the team," he declared. "He could start at any position, but he will play where needed. Eric Lippincott, Brian Decker, and Lloyd Wilson look like possible starters with juniors Dave Perking and Mark Chapman also looking good."

"Only in one area does Hunter raise a question mark: goal."

"Vince DeLuca returns but has not looked like the man of 1973," Hunter explained. "He has been slow getting into shape and has made many mistakes."

"Behind him is a gung-ho junior, Steve Coffey, who had seven shutouts last year on the JV," Hunter pointed out.

Garth Galyon, Eric Schreiner, Mike Kirk, and Steve Sterling are the other members of the KHS squad. DeLuca, Helmich, Lippincott, Kantor, and Davis were starters last year. Ten players, in all, are back.

Kingston's home opener at Loughran Park is Saturday at 10 a.m. against Rhinebeck.

Hunter said new halfbacks from last year's solid junior varsity team will hold down the mid-field positions. Kevin Boyd, Tim Dell, Bill Wynkoff, and Dino Provenzano are fighting for starting jobs.

Butz Surgery ST. LOUIS (AP) — Knee surgery was performed on the St. Louis Cardinals' Dave Butz Monday to repair damage caused during the team's National Football League opener Sunday against the Philadelphia Eagles.

Dolphins Perfect

KINGSTON The Rhinebeck Dolphins ran their winning streak to 11 games and finished a perfect season with a 4-1 win over the Bull Shed to win the championship of the Atomic League in the Hudson Valley Soccer League for the second straight year.

Steve Dahlem and Pete Zanis, Paul Marvin and Pete Klenz, have all ripped the nets for the Dolphins. Only Mike Sims of the losers could dent the Dolphin defense.

The Dolphins easily advanced to the finals by whipping Deitz Auto Supply, 3-1 in the semifinals. Deitz was the runnerup to the Bull Shed in the Metropolitan Division but was outclassed against the champions Marvin teamed with Mike Siebold and Jack Curthow to score for the winners. Bill Davis had the Deitz goal.

Bull Shed had to go into overtime to eliminate the Colonial Division's second place team, Court Restaurant, 3-2. Mike and Marvin Sims along with Bob June provided the offense while Dave Farrell and Randy Freeman hit for Courts.

Other leagues also wrapped up, and in the National League the Cosmos also successfully defended a title. Jim Decker booted the game winner as the Cosmos topped Osker's Tapers in a 1-0 game. The Cosmos finished the year with an 8-1-1 slate.

In other contests, Jim Kerr hit twice in Schuplatzer's 4-0 triumph over JoAl's Restaurant and Mannaehor blanked Garaghan Oil, 3-0.

In the Yankee League, the SAA Bluestone saw its nine game winning streak stopped.

OLIVE John Tisch, Hugh John and Tom Kuriger each drove in three runs to power the underdog Donut Mix team to a 12-7 victory over Dial Barber and Beauty Shop in the championship game of the Town of Olive Softball League.

Five runs in the bottom of the second frame boosted the winners to a 9-4 lead they never lost while upsetting the Eastern Division champs. John Stelson aided the attack with a double and a triple while Tisch picked up the win on the mound. Art Gribbons homered for the losers.

In the semi-final round, Donut Mix knocked off the Landmark Restaurant, the Western Division winners, by an 8-3 margin. John and Al Tisch drove in two apiece in that one while Stelson drilled three hits. Mario Carpanzo and Mike Berardi had triples for the victors.

Our Last Known Viet POW to Be Released This Week

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — The last known American prisoner of the Indochina war, Hawaiian charter pilot Emmet James Kay, is expected to be released this week from the limestone cave that has been his home for 15 months.

In letters he was allowed to write to his wife, Kay said the pro-Communist Pathet Lao housed him in the cave in northeastern Laos but that he was well-treated. He wrote that he frequently played volleyball and card games with his guards.

Kay described the cave as small and old. Limestone caves abound in that area and almost everyone moved into them to escape heavy U.S. bombing during the war, according to diplomats who have visited there.

Three months after a June 4 deadline for the exchange of all prisoners of war, the royal government in Vientiane and the Pathet Lao finally agreed to carry out this key provision of the 1973 peace accords.

Kay has been held since his small plane made a forced landing in the Pathet Lao zone May 7, 1973. Diplomats from nations with close ties to the Pathet Lao say the Laotian leftists have given assurances that Kay will be among those freed when the two parties to the cease-fire partners now in a new coalition government in Vientiane, begin their long-delayed prisoner exchange.

A professional pilot whose twin passions are flying and stock car racing, Kay may soon be reunited with his Hawaiian-born wife, Florence, and their teen-age children, Kimo, 19, and Puanani, 15.

The Kays had lived in Vientiane for the best part of two years when Emmet's plane went down. Mrs. Kay and the other American airmen who are listed as missing in action in Laos.

Almost since the day he was captured, Emmet Kay was allowed to exchange monthly letters with his family and Mrs. Kay was able to send him books, warm clothes and cans of Hawaiian poi.

The families of other missing Americans have heard nothing up to $375 million a year to the U.S. military men here believe Phouma to help them prosecute a war in the mountains against Laos — a little over half of this month, diplomats here say and Navy pilots, perished in the a combined Pathet Lao and North Vietnamese army.

American planes dropped spent in humanitarian aid — being lucky.

The release of Kay will, in a more than two million tons of bombs on Laos, and civilian pilots like Kay flew hundreds of support missions every week, ferrying rice, salt and some of the United States will continue aiding Laos to promote stability in Southeast Asia.

Though two earlier coalitions Congress now has put a $100 — one in 1957 and the other in million ceiling on U.S. aid to 1962 — came unstuck within a war in the mountains against Laos — a little over half of this month, diplomats here say and Navy pilots, perished in the a combined Pathet Lao and North Vietnamese army.

Ex-Senator Goodell to Head Clemency Review Board

WASHINGTON (AP) — Charles E. Goodell, who tried as a senator to hasten the end of the Vietnam war, has been summoned from political exile to help Vietnam-era outcasts return to American society.

"I'm pleased to be back in a position of some influence over matters I feel very deeply about," Goodell said Monday as he set to work as chairman of the clemency review board created under President Ford's conditional amnesty program.

As an appointed senator from New York, Goodell was a leading Republican critic of war policy during the first two years of Richard M. Nixon's administration. That was one of the issues that led former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew to sail him during the 1970 campaign as a "radical" — a term he otherwise reserved for liberal Democrats.

Goodell had been a conservative congressman from western New York when he succeeded the slain Robert F. Kennedy. As a senator, his ideological shift caused Agnew to deride him as "the Christine Jorgensen of the Republican Party."

In 1970, Nixon endorsed conservative party candidate James L. Buckley, who won. A Democrat took away liberal votes. Goodell came in third. Goodell said he took no pleasure in the undoing of his old political foes.

"I felt no vindictiveness toward Spiro Agnew or Mr. Nixon," he said in an interview. "I obviously disagreed with many of the things they did... But I broke with his friend Gerald R. Ford, however, and became a part-time adviser when the Michigan congressman became vice president.

But Goodell said he had no part in designing Ford's amnesty program.

Since leaving the Senate, Goodell has practiced law in New York and Washington. Because his assignment is part-time, with no potential conflicts of interest, he won't have to leave the firm.

A Storm of Controversy

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

President Ford's limited amnesty plan has created a storm of controversy but apparently has drawn few inquiries from draft evaders or deserters and no early confirmed reports of any takers.

The Justice Department said 10 persons identifying themselves as evaders or deserters called seeking information during the first 12 hours after amnesty was announced.

Spokeswoman Gloria C. Brown said some of the calls came from persons in Canada who said they had no money for transportation to a U.S. attorney's office.

She added five department employees will handle amnesty inquiries.

Initial reaction to the proposal was predictable. War resisters said it didn't go far enough and veterans groups said it went too far.

Draft evaders and deserters living in exile called the proposal unacceptable because it implied guilt on the part of those who had spurned involvement in what they viewed as an immoral war.

Veterans groups and some relatives of Vietnam casualties were just as vehement in their opposition calling it a betrayal of those who had fought and died in Southeast Asia.

The plan probably received its warmest reception in Congress where several key leaders endorsed it.

President Ford on Monday set in motion the government machinery to grant conditional amnesty to Vietnam-era draft evaders and deserters if they reaffirm their allegiance to the United States by Jan. 31, 1975, and work up to 24 months in low-paying public service jobs.

He also indicated that persons serving prison sentences for draft evasion or desertion would be released pending decisions on their cases by an amnesty clemency board.

In Canada, the most popular haven for the 12,500 deserters and 4,060 fugitive draft evaders, there apparently was little interest in accepting the offer of amnesty.

The reception in Sweden, where about 400 draft evaders and deserters live, also was cool.

George Meals, a deserter from Atlanta, said, "Amnesty means forgiving. This isn't really amnesty at all. In the spirit of the law, we did nothing wrong. Not in the context of that war."

The widow of the last serviceman killed in Vietnam, Joyce Nolde of Onaway, Mich., asked, "What about the boys who went over there and came back maimed, physically and mentally? What of the men who were killed?"

But leaders of veterans groups blasted the proposal. John J. Stang, commander-in-chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, said Ford's action "does a gross injustice to those who served honorably, those who died and received wounds, and those who were for so long imprisoned."

Several congressional leaders voiced support for the plan, including House Speaker Carl Albert, D-Okla., and Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont.

Haig NATO Chief

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Alexander M. Haig Jr. was named supreme commander of NATO and commander of American forces in Europe Monday.

The announcement was made by President Ford.

Haig, 49, retired from active duty as a four star Army general in August, 1973, four months after he became former President Nixon's chief of staff. Haig replaced Watergate defendant H.R. Haldeman, who resigned April 30, 1973.

Haig will succeed Gen. Andrew J. Goodpastor, 59, who retired as commander of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization defense group Dec. 15. Haig will probably leave his White House job Friday and take command of U.S. forces in Europe Nov. 1, after a vacation.

Haig's nomination by Ford was unanimously approved by NATO's defense planning committee in Brussels, despite threats by the Dutch government to oppose the request because of Haig's close association with former president Nixon.

In a joint statement, the 14 NATO governments on the planning committee "expressed their lasting gratitude for Gen. Goodpastor's distinguished service."

The White House statement said: "On behalf of the American people, President Ford joins in extending his appreciation to Gen. Goodpastor for a job well done."

President Ford said in a news conference Monday night that he has not decided who will replace Haig.

Ford now has three top advisors — Robert Hartmann, former Virginia Democratic Congressman John O. Marsh, and counsel Philip W. Buchen — handling his White House policy planning.

Mrs. Smith Takes Over

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The number of Republican office holders has declined.

Speaking of Republican principles, Mrs. Smith said "if we have such a good thing going — and I think we have — then why do polls show that only 23 per cent of the voters call themselves Republicans?"

"Somewhere the Republican Party is doing something wrong. Or else we're not doing enough things right. Either we're being out-organized or out-sold. I suspect it's a little of both. It is here I will concentrate my efforts during the next two years."

She said the party it was in trouble and it better pull up its socks.

"It is time for the Republican Party to come to grips with the shape we're in," she said.

"Republican registration is down. In too many areas the SAUGERTIES before unlocking the door and of which will be announced letting a sizeable crowd in. They within a week." The decision, with Trustee Erika Hinchey the only dissenter and Mayor Vernon "Joe" Benjamin abstaining, quickly aroused a storm of opposition. Business leaders, the Saugerties Business Association, and a group called Concerned Citizens for Saugerties have all taken legal action to recover all three possible plans, and suggested that Saugerties give solving the village and merging it with the town. The third plan, which would incorporate the entire town within the village, could reduce real property taxes by 70 per cent, he said. Another letter, from Ms. Nancy Claffone, called attention to three places she said were dangerous for pedestrians, especially school children. One is on Main Street near Cahill School, where she suggested a 15 miles an hour speed limit. Another is at the intersection of Main and Market streets, where she said there is no assistance for school children crossing in the morning and at noon. The third is at the Ulster Avenue-Market Street intersection, which she called "dangerous." Trustee Hinchey, the police commissioner, said she would investigate the three spots and make recommendations to the board. Another letter from the Saugerties Coast Guard unit, told of its plans to install a 12-by-60-foot trailer on Lighthouse Drive for use as an office and training place for Coast Guard personnel. No personnel will be quartered there and a survey of area residents about the proposal was "generally favorable," the Coast Guard letter said. It was turned over to John Hill, zoning enforcement officer, for investigation. Mrs. Hinchey moved to have the village join with the Concerned Consumers of Ulster County as co-complainants before the Public Service Commission about Central Hudson's addition of fuel adjustment changes to consumer bills. The measure passed with Trustees Robert Gardner and Walter Keefe opposed and Richard Underhill abstaining. Benjamin announced that a meeting will be held Wednesday night in the village hall to discuss United Way plans for the current year. "Our goal is about $5,000 and we are looking for volunteers," he said. "We need all the help we can get."

By CARL GRAHAM

Paltz Terminates Brown Pact

By WADE BURKHART

NEW PALTZ, N.Y. — The State University College at New Paltz has terminated the employment of Edward Brown, the man whose holding down of three full-time college professorships attracted national attention, after Brown failed to show up for his classes at New Paltz this semester. In a letter drafted late last week, and mailed to Brown Monday, New Paltz President Dr. Stanley K. Coffman Jr. told Brown he was "deemed to have resigned by abandonment of your position as assistant professor in the Department of Sociology," because he had not shown up to teach his classes this year.

Brown was removed from the payroll and employ of the college effective Aug. 29; according to a college spokesman, Brown received no money from the college for this academic year. If Brown had been receiving his pay over the summer, according to the spokesman, it was only pay he was owed for his 1973-74 academic year work.

The college had previously asked the State University's Central Administration to draw up charges against Brown should he not resign, to seek to have him removed from the faculty.

Brown has not come to New Paltz this academic year, according to the college, either to teach his classes or to formally submit his resignation.

Officials at New Paltz had little success in reaching Brown once it became known that New Paltz was not his only job. The letter informing Brown that he was no longer a New Paltz faculty member had to be sent to four different addresses, according to the spokesman, a Pittsburgh, Pa., address, one in

New York City, that of a Pittsburgh law office, and an address at California (Pa.) State College, where Brown is a tenured member of the Department of Social Sciences.

It was the belief of the spokesman that Brown had no right of appeal in this termination action.

Brown, for about six months, held down full-time teaching positions at three different colleges, New Paltz, California State, and Bronx Community College.

To hold down all these jobs, he had to commute weekly between California State, which is near Pittsburgh, to the two New York State colleges. According to California State officials they knew he was taking a lot of trips to New York, but they just thought he was working on his doctorate there. In addition to the jobs, Brown was reportedly enrolled in the doctoral program at New York University.

Brown has been at California State for seven years. His Bronx job began in February of 1973, and ended with his resignation last February. His job at New Paltz began in September of 1973, and lasted until his termination as of Aug. 29.

When his multiple employment became known by California State, he was suspended without pay there for the second half of last year's spring semester, but he was teaching there again this summer.

There are no official estimates of Brown's salary from the three teaching positions, but according to unofficial ones, if he had held all three jobs for a full year, he would have made about $50,000.

Permits Issued

NEW YORK — In a move aimed to further reduce water pollution, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency has issued final cleanup permits for the Town of Ulster's Sewer Improvement Area Treatment Plant in Lake Katrine and the Highland Sewer District in Highland.

The permits issued set a limit on the discharge of pollutants and establish a phased schedule for any further cleanup efforts that are needed. The two systems, at present, are discharging pollutants into nearby water ways.

The permits require that the industries or municipalities involved use the "best practicable" water pollution control technology by July 1, 1977. Even more stringent controls can be mandated if they are needed to achieve the state's water quality goals.

Failure to comply with any requirements of the permit constitutes a violation for which either municipality could be liable for prosecution by state or federal authorities.

The 1972 Federal Water Pollution Control Act Amendments established the National Pollutant Discharge Elimination System to issue the cleanup permits to every facility that discharges waste waters into a waterway.

The 1972 law is the most comprehensive program ever enacted to clean up the Nation's waters. The law mandates a sweeping federal and state campaign to prevent, reduce and ultimately eliminate water pollution in this country.

Transit Appeal

KINGSTON — A plea for mass transportation in Ulster County "to meet the needs of the county," was made to the Ulster County Legislature recently by Belle Sundeen, president of Concerned Consumers, who said that state and federal loans are available to provide transportation for rural people.

Addressing the legislature, Mrs. Sundeen cited the present increased costs of private transportation and the need to conserve energy. She said that Oneida and Broome Counties already operate their own mass transportation facilities and that Sullivan and Orange County have begun work on similar projects.

People, especially the elderly, need mobility to hospitals, to shopping centers and to their doctors, she said.

Mrs. Sundeen scolded those legislators and supervisors in the county who failed to attend a regional meeting on transportation in Poughkeepsie recently, saying the only representation from Ulster County was by six members of Concerned Consumers.

She asked that machinery be set in motion immediately to find out what state and federal funds for grants or loans are available, to ask for bids or, for the county to consider a county-owned transportation facility which she said would attract 90 per cent funding from the federal government.

'No Depression,' Says President

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford has assured Americans the nation's economy is not headed for a depression, despite steep inflation and sagging industrial production.

He promised at his news conference Monday night new measures "to make sure that our economy improves in the months ahead," but he did not outline them.

"Let me say very strongly that the United States is not going to have a depression," Ford asserted. The over-all economy is strong and employment remains high, he said.

"We do have the problems of inflation. We do have related problems and we're going to come up with some answers that I hope will solve these problems," Ford said.

By contrast, there were 4.9 million Americans unable to find jobs last month, representing 5.4 per cent of the labor force.

While industrial production is off this year, it still is only 1.8 per cent below the peak output in November of last year. And the economy shows no hint of deflation, a condition of falling prices.

Nevertheless, the nation's top labor leaders warned Ford last week that the government's current anti-inflation policies of "tight credit" and restrained federal spending could plunge the country into a deep recession. But administration economic advisers have maintained these policies are necessary to control inflation over the long-run, even if they produce short-term difficulties.

The "Yes" Bank comes to Kingston.

If you get Chemical No-Bounce Privilege Checking or a Chemical Master Charge at our new Kingston Branch, we'll say "Yes" to a free checking account and a free safe deposit box.

Chemical Bank Hudson Valley, N.A. is pleased to announce the grand opening of a new branch in Kingston. We're so pleased, in fact, that we're giving away a free checking account and a free safe deposit box* for one year to every customer who applies for and receives Chemical No-Bounce Privilege Checking or a Chemical Master Charge card.

And we'll say "yes" to both No-Bounce Checking and a ChemBank Master Charge as long as you're over eighteen, steadily employed, earn at least a hundred dollars a week and won't be in over your head.

No-Bounce Checking. Chemical's No-Bounce Privilege Checking says "yes" when your checkbook says "no." So you can write checks for more than your balance. It's even a way to write yourself a loan.

And Chemical checking accounts include "simplified statements." So your checks come back in the order you write them.

ChemBank Master Charge. It's good for a "yes" at stores, restaurants and hotels anyplace. And you can borrow cash at any Master Charge bank, anywhere in the world.

Grand Sweepstakes. While you're at our branch opening celebration, be sure to fill out an entry blank for our Grand Sweepstakes. You could win five minutes of free shopping at the Waldbaum Supermarket in the Caldor's Shopping Center and take home up to $300 worth of groceries.

So stop in at our new branch and say hello to manager John Ledwith. Our celebration extends to Thursday, October 31. We're open 9 A.M. to 3 P.M., Monday through Thursday, with our drive-in window open 9 A.M. to 5 P.M. On Fridays, our hours are 9 A.M. to 3 P.M. and 5:30 P.M. to 7 P.M., with our drive-in window open from 9 A.M. to 7 P.M. During the opening celebration only, we have special Saturday hours on September 14, 21 and 28 from 10 A.M. to 2 P.M.

Murder Trial Is Underway

KINGSTON — A plea of innocent by reason of insanity was entered in the murder trial of 23-year-old Maryann Parker who is accused in the strangling death of 65-year-old George Chichelsky with whom she resided at 33 Broadway, Kingston, at the time of his death in November, 1973.

First Assistant District Attorney Ellen G. Donovan, in questioning jurors, revealed that there will be "quite a bit of psychiatric testimony" throughout the trial.

Miss Parker, also known as Maryann Pegram, is charged with two counts — intentional murder and felony murder. She is being represented by Charles Saccoman, assisted by Peter Graham.

County Judge Raymond J. Mino is presiding.

Little Old Ladies Do It Again

By Oswald and James Jacoby

ace of hearts was led and both East players dropped the queen. This didn't disturb the LOL declarer. Little old lady technique pays no attention to possible bad trump breaks. She continued by cashing the king and shortly thereafter had chalked up plus 420 after losing a spade, a heart and a diamond. The other declarer staid that queen play for a long time. He had heard about safety plays and maybe that queer was a genuine singleton. He led a low trump toward dummy. East took his jack of trumps and led back a diamond. A third diamond was ruffed and thus South had lost his contract, his temper and his partner's confidence. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

A three notrump contract is preferable to four hearts, but little old ladies like to raise one another. So do some other players. So when today's hand was played in a Swiss team, both the LOLs and their opponents reached four hearts. The three of diamonds was led at both tables and East's king fell to South's ace. The

Indian Leaders Win Dismissals

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — American Indian Movement leaders Dennis Banks and Russell Means have won dismissals in the major test case of the 71-day Wounded Knee occupation, although the federal government may appeal the decision.

But Means and Banks weren't worried about an appeal as Banks stood on a table in a plush hotel room, balancing a cake in each hand Monday night.

One of the cakes bore the letters "FBI" before Banks slammed it on the checkered carpet.

The scene was a stark contrast to the dusty, flat grazing land of the Pine Ridge Indian Reservation in South Dakota where AIM members and sympathizers resisted U.S. marshals in the spring of 1973.

About 200 persons, half of them white, celebrated with the two AIM leaders, including four jurors who had earlier said they would have voted to acquit the pair if they'd had the chance.

But in a slashing attack on "government misconduct," U.S. District Judge Fred Nicol dismissed the charges against Banks, 42, St. Paul, and Means, 35, Porcupine, S.D., ending the eight-month trial.

Nicol said at one point, "This has been a bad year for justice. I would like to see a new chapter written with a new president. But I'm afraid that isn't so."

He acted after the Justice Department refused to allow jury deliberations to continue after one juror, Mrs. Therese Cherrier, suffered a stroke which left her partially paralyzed.

Federal court procedure requires the approval of both sides before a jury may continue deliberations with one or more jurors missing.

The defendants had hoped for an acquittal to pave the way for wiping out charges against all other Wounded Knee defendants, now numbering about 90.

The two AIM leaders were tagged by federal prosecutors as the key figures in a seven-man leadership that allegedly steered the armed takeover of the historic South Dakota hamlet last year, when AIM said it was protesting what it called terrible neglect of Indian problems.

Nicol rapped the FBI for its handling of a government rebuttal witness.

The judge charged that in keeping witness Louis Moves Camp in protective custody, two FBI agents put him up in a "plush resort" near Hudson, Wis., "let him have all the li-

Antibusing Clashes Continue in Boston

BOSTON DEMONSTRATION — A young demonstrator heaves an ash can down the street in South Boston as students and adults protested the court-ordered integration of Boston public schools by busing students to various sections of the city. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

BOSTON (UPI) — Police and antibusing demonstrators clashed for the third day Monday in South Boston, where most parents are not sending their children to school under a court-ordered desegregation plan.

About 800 police, on horses, motorcycles and on foot, stopped a crowd of jeering whites trying time and again to march on South Boston High School. Twenty-two persons were arrested. Two policemen suffered heart attacks during the protest march. No school children were hurt.

Despite the violence in the blue collar, Irish Catholic southern sector of the city, known as South Boston, school officials reported citywide attendance was slightly higher Monday, and both the federal judge who ordered the desegregation plan and the mayor said the situation had improved.

"There was progress today — and avoidance of some of the incidents of last week," said U.S. District Court Judge W.

Arthur Garrity. His plan calls for the relocation of about 45,000 students, including 18,235 on day and Friday, the first two days of school, mostly in South Boston.

At least 23 persons were arrested and 21 injured Thursday and Friday, the first two days of school, mostly in South Boston.

Officials said citywide attendance Monday was 70 per cent, 148 pupils showed up, 87 of them black. It was a small fraction of the students expected where the high school has a projected enrollment of 1,521.

"Without question, today has been the best day so far. All responsible parties — black and white — have been doing everything they could to safeguard the children," said Mayor Kevin H. White.

He ordered South Boston's bars and liquor stores closed until 4 p.m. Monday. Despite the continued outbursts, White suggested the end of the violent demonstrations was at hand.

"With a lot of hard work, some luck and some prayers, the desegregation would be completed peacefully," he said.

Ford said he will meet with congressional committees on whether they want any changes so that Congress as well as the President are fully informed and included in reviewing such covert operations.

CIA Action in Chile Confirmed

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford has confirmed that the CIA acted against former Chilean President Salvador Allende as a Senate committee considers whether to pursue charges it was misled about those activities.

A Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee staff report recommends action against former CIA Director Richard M. Helms and three other officials for sworn testimony minimizing the CIA activity, congressional sources say. The report was scheduled for consideration by the full committee today.

There were conflicting accounts whether the report recommends perjury investigations, contempt of Congress charges or some combination of the two.

The report also was said to be critical of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger for testifying there was no U.S. involvement in the bloody coup in which Allende died last year, but saying nothing about the previous CIA activity.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, chairman of the subcommittee for which the report was prepared, refused to give details but said the full committee would take up both the propriety of the CIA activities and officials' truthfulness about them.

"Sworn testimony before my subcommittee was at variance with what has been disclosed," Church said in a telephone interview Monday night.

"We now learn there is no difference between American policy and Soviet policy in subverting foreign governments," he said. "I had always thought the United States stood for different principles."

Ford said at his news conference Monday night there is no doubt in his mind that there was no U.S. involvement in Chile's coup. But he confirmed that the CIA supported Allende's opposition in the 1970 elections.

"It is a recognized fact that historically, as well as presently, such actions are taken in the best interest of the countries involved," the President said.

Ford said he would not judge whether such activity is permitted by international law.

He said he was reliably informed that Communist countries "spend vastly more money than we do for the same kind of purposes."

Ford said the CIA activity was in response to what he said was an effort by Allende, a Marxist, "to destroy opposition news media, both the writing press as well as the electronic press, and to destroy opposition political parties."

The effort that was made in

Nine Hostages Still Held

THE HAGUE (UPI) — Holland held out hope today for an end to the five-day siege at the French Embassy, but said it was "impossible for the time being" to get the three Japanese guerrillas to give up their nine hostages.

A gunman in a speeding car fired several shots at police ringing the embassy Monday night, stepping up tensions outside the besieged building.

Police said the man sped off after firing at a policeman. Authorities said the officer was unhurt, but declined to disclose any other details about the incident.

In hopes of a break in negotiations, Dutch officials prepared a Boeing 707 jet at the nearby Schiphol Airport to fly the Japanese Red Army guerillas out of the country with a Marxist comrade sprung from a French prison.

In a television interview Monday night, Premier Joop den Uyl said negotiations with the terrorists produced some "possibilities" for agreement but warned against "too much optimism."

"There are still some very difficult points at issue, making an exchange impossible for the time being," he said.

Hostages held by the three leftist extremists include Count Jacques Senard, the French ambassador to Holland.

Yutaka Furuya, a 25-year-old Red Army member imprisoned in Paris, was brought to the airport Friday hours after the three guerrillas demanded his release.

29th Annual Session

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Delegates from 138 nations gathered today for the opening of a U.N. General Assembly session expected to be dominated by the new economic muscle of the Arab world.

The assembly's 29th annual session opened with the world body painfully aware of its failure to head off the recent Cyprus warfare or work out a settlement to the explosive Middle East conflict.

The delegates are scheduled to meet this afternoon for the start of a three-month session highlighted by flowery speeches on the assembly floor and hush-hush talks in U.N. corridors and plush hotel suites.

Secretary General Kurt Waldheim said Monday the assembly is faced with the tough task of trying to agree on a "new global economic order" striking a balance between rich and poor countries.

Waldheim told a news conference the diplomats must consider an economic balance such as that discussed during last spring's special session called at a climactic moment in the world energy crisis.
